Dear JROTC Championship Coaches and Competitors:

One year ago, the idea of having a JROTC National Air Rifle Championship was no more than a dream. The Army, Navy and Marine Corps JROTC Commands have supported air rifle marksmanship training for decades and hundreds of JROTC unit rifle teams participated annually in numerous local, regional and national tournaments. Despite an outstanding record of success in these tournaments, the JROTC rifle program did not have a championship of its own, however.

The dream started to become a reality last year when representatives of the Army, Navy and Marine Corps JROTC Commands and the Civilian Marksmanship Program decided to organize a championship starting in 2003. Beginning early last fall, competition plans were quickly put together. First phase postal qualifying competitions were held in December and January. 1,171 JROTC unit teams and over 5,400 individual cadets participated in those postals in what has already become the country's largest youth shooting sports competition.

Second phase qualifying competitions were conducted in February to select the top three sporter and top three precision class unit teams to represent their services in the National Championship. Army and Marine Corps competitions were witnessed postals. The Navy took the bold step of organizing a very successful shoulder-to-shoulder Navy JROTC Championship at Memphis Naval Air Station on 22 February.

The 1st JROTC National Air Rifle Championship is now history. This has been an exciting and impressive competition that truly showcased the positive qualities of marksmanship training for youth and the JROTC programs. The Civilian Marksmanship Program was honored to act as the championship organizer. We thank everyone who worked together to make it a success and we congratulate all of the JROTC cadets and team coaches who have been a part of this great competition.

Yours for good shooting,

Gary Anderson, Director
Civilian Marksmanship Program
Competition Director
