Letter of Thank You

On behalf of the Civilian Marksmanship Program, we would like to Thank You for participating in this year's National JROTC Air Rifle Championship. Over 7,700 cadets entered the JROTC postal match last Fall. The CMP scored over 23,000 postal targets to determine who would compete in the Service Championships held in February. From these Service Championships, the top teams and individuals were selected to compete in the National JROTC Air Rifle Championship.

CMP would like to congratulate each cadet for qualifying for the National JROTC Air Rifle Championship. It is a great honor to host an exciting event. CMP would also like to extend our Thanks to the coaches, volunteers and parents for devoting their time and energy to the juniors competing in the National Championship.

A special Thanks to our award sponsors, Daisy and Crosman. Daisy donated a rifle to the Sporter Individual Champion, Alexandra Provine, and awarded merchandise certificates to the top three sporter teams: Flowing Wells HS, AZ - $300, Daleville HS, AL - $200 and Ozark HS, MO - $100. Crosman donated a rifle to the winning sporter team, Flowing Wells HS, AZ.

Hard Work and Fun Combine to Make JROTC National Air Rifle Championships a Special Event

By Steve Cooper, CMP Writer

ANNISTON, ALABAMA – For Junior ROTC air rifle competitors, the annual National Championship held at the CMP South Marksmanship Center is the culmination of an entire school year of commitment to their sport. The JROTC National Championship is their Super Bowl, World Series, Stanley Cup, Finals or Masters.

The championship road began 10 October, 2011 when Army, Marine Corps, Navy and Air Force JROTC cadets began their quest for participation in the tournament via postal competitions, shooting at targets at their home ranges and submitting them to the Civilian Marksmanship Program for scoring via postal and private carriers.

In addition to postal competition, many individuals and teams participated in local, state and regional precision and sporter class air rifle events. Some even participated in the USA Shooting Trials for Airgun – the selection process for the U.S. Olympic airgun teams. For JROTC cadets, the events away from home helped them prepare for competitions which require long distance bus or van rides, hotel stays and no home cooking.

Postal competition by brigade, region and area qualifiers closed in mid-December, which set the next stage - service championships - at Camp Perry, Ohio and Anniston in February. It's the service championships that determine which individuals and teams earn their entry to the Nationals.

It's a long road from the high school gym in early October to the championship range in March, but along the way, these high-schoolers learn a great deal about their sport and themselves while having some fun along the way.

The following are some images of those 2012 National Championship participants, friends, families and coaches at the CMP Marksmanship Center in Anniston.

Tolerating media attention comes with the turf when shooters leave their home ranges at state, regional and national competitions. Cameras, video recorders and strangers all become part of the mix, challenging shooters' ability to focus.

Chief Range Officer, Larry Pendergrass, combines his many years of match direction with a passion for making the young shooters' experience a valuable one.

Members of Allison Ginger's family from both Illinois and Alabama took the opportunity to reunite to support her during the national championships. Ginger, 18, represented Pekin High School Army JROTC, Illinois, in the precision air rifle class.

Sharing knowledge with other coaches only enhances the development of shooters. The spirit of competition and camaraderie are important components of national events.

The JROTC Nationals bring shooters together from across the country and sometimes from across the ocean. Meredith Romih, 18, of Patch High School Army JROTC in Stuttgart, Germany, represented her American school's cadet team.

Having a sense of humor helps.

Concentration, attention to detail and following a shot plan are all part of the championship process.

Overcoming the odds. Kelsey Moral, 17, who finished her senior year at East Coweta High School Marine Corps JROTC, is winning her battle with a mild case of spastic cerebral palsy. Moral has fought through leg pain to get into a good kneeling position and has become all-state and nationally-ranked air rifle competitor. She has earned a scholarship at Columbus State University where she will continue her air rifle career.

Alexandrea Provine Tops Tyler Rico to Win 2012 National JROTC Sporter Air Rifle Championship

By Steve Cooper, CMP Writer

ANNISTON, ALABAMA—Alexandrea Provine, 18, of Flowing Wells High School Army JROTC, Arizona, was crowned the top JROTC sporter air rifle competitor at the 2012 National JROTC Championship here on Saturday, 24 March after two days of three position qualification plus finals.

Provine outlasted Flowing Wells JROTC teammate Tyler Rico, 17, firing an aggregate score of 1210.4 to Rico's 1206.4. Scores in prone, standing and kneeling each day were combined with the average of the two days' final scores to arrive at the aggregate.

"I'm really happy about it – this is something I've really wanted to do for a long time. I went in thinking 'this is my last match, I want to go in and have fun,'" Provine said following the awards banquet.

The high school senior will now enter the U.S. Military Academy at West Point, New York, where she will compete on the collegiate level in NCAA rifle shooting. Her West Point journey begins in July with Cadet Basic Training, also known as "Beast Barracks" prior to beginning classroom and marksmanship team activities.

Provine earned her championship with consistency, posting highs in prone of 195 each day. Though Rico held the overall advantage after Day 1, he gave up several points to Provine in the standing and kneeling stages on Day 2. His finals average was higher overall, but Provine's consistency in position work made the difference.

Army JROTC cadets swept the remaining top five places individually as Charles Hollis, 18, of Rayville HS, Louisiana, placed third with an aggregate score of 1199.9. Benjamin Estes, 16, of Ozark HS, Missouri, placed fourth at 1197.35 and Zachary Kofron, 18, of Marcos de Niza HS, Arizona, was fifth at 1197.05.

In Navy JROTC competition, Hunter Cushman, 15, of King George HS, Virginia, placed first with an aggregate of 1194.4. Zach Gibson, 18, of Montrose HS, Colorado, placed second with 1189.3. Matthew Miller, 16, of East Aurora HS, Illinois, finished third with 1189.2. Mitchell Miller, 16, of Union Grove HS, Georgia, placed fourth with 1102 and Zachary Frohn, Charles Hollis, of Rayville HS Army JROTC, Louisiana, placed third in sporter air rifle with an aggregate score of 1199.9.

17, of Charlotte HS, Florida, placed fifth with a an aggregate score of 1099.

Placing first in Marine Corps JROTC competition was Steven Murphy, 17, of R-S Central High School, North Carolina. Ridge Anderson, 16, of Fortshyth High School, Missouri, placed second with an aggregate score of 1083 and Manuel Leal, 17, of Selma HS, California, placed third (1082). Emily Weeks, 18, of R-S Central placed fourth with 1081 and Joshua Foster, 19, of Sapulpa HS, Oklahoma, placed fifth (1079).

In Air Force sporter competition, Arthur David, 17, (1181) and Kenneth Corona, 17, (1101) of South Anchorage, Alaska, placed first and second. Matthew Velasquez, 15, of Buckeye Union HS, Arizona, placed third with 1091. Lara Lindberg, 16, and Katelynn Law, 17, of Western Hills, Texas, placed fourth and fifth with 1085 and 1080, respectively.

Heather Kirby's National Record-Breaking Performance Leads to 2012 National JROTC Precision Air Rifle Championship

By Steve Cooper, CMP Writer

ANNISTON, ALABAMA – It required setting two new national precision air rifle records to do it, but Heather Kirby, 16, of Kentucky's Shelby County High School U.S. Marine Corps JROTC, did just that as she edged her teammate and defending national champion Connor Davis, 19, by just five hundredths of a point in aggregate scoring, 1285.45 to 1285.40, respectively.

Kirby set two new open/overall national records for individual three-position scoring in qualification-plus-final score of 699.0, topping the previous record of 697.5 set by Davis in last year's National JROTC championship. She also set the new open/overall national record for a final score of 105.0 (109 being perfect in computerized scoring). The latter record also belonged to Davis who set it with a 103.8 in the 2010 Gary Anderson Invitational. Kirby's performances were also new records for the USMC JROTC in precision air rifle and in her age group of 15 & 16. Both Marine Corps JROTC records formerly belonged to Davis as well.

JROTC National aggregate scoring combines the scores fired in three positions on days 1 and 2 plus the average score of the two finals. Both days Kirby and Davis fired world-class scores and the outcome of the precision championship was not known until the final shot.

Coming into the Nationals, Davis had been nearly invincible since winning the Marine Corps JROTC service and national titles last year, and several events since, including a high junior finish in the U.S. Olympic Trials for Airgun in February. When Davis took a near six-point lead in Day 1 competition in the national championship, including an almost-perfect standing score of 199, it seemed like a repeat JROTC precision championship was within his reach.

In two days of shooting, Davis led in qualification scoring, 1183 to 1182 but neither he nor Kirby shot particularly high-scoring finals on Day 1. Davis started strong again on Day 2 with very good scores in prone and kneeling, but dropped six points in standing.

Kirby put on a clinic in clutch shooting on Day 2 as she made virtually every shot count. She erased almost all of her six-point deficit through qualifying and turned up the heat in the final, firing her national record-breaking 105.0.

The match was so close; it appeared that Davis' 104.2 (a record that lasted for just seconds) in the Day 2 final could be the break-out he needed until Kirby trumped it with her 105. Since the advent of computerized targetry, no male or female has fired a perfect score of 109 in official competition, but 105 is a world-class final score.

Kirby's finals score average of 103.45 proved the difference to Davis' 102.4, making up the overall point she lost in qualifying and boosting her finals average.

Jodi Cull-Host, 18, of Los Alamos High School U.S. Navy JROTC, New Mexico, placed third in the precision competition, just five points behind. Cull-Host fired three 199's and a 200 in prone and kneeling positions in posting her 1280.25 aggregate.

Tessa Howald, 18, of Ozark High School Army JROTC, Missouri, placed fourth in her first year of precision air rifle competition. Howald placed second in individual sporter air rifle competition in last year's championship. She shot her way into fourth place in the Day 1 final after a dramatic one shot shoot-off with teammate Makennon Doran, 17.

In the shoot-off, Doran fired first, scoring a 10.3. Howald studied her sight picture and was not satisfied. She regrouped and after an extended hold, fired a 10.5 to clinch the fourth spot.

"I could not have told you where that shot went," she said with tear-filled eyes at the conclusion of the awards banquet. "It didn't feel good, but didn't feel bad. But to go up against a teammate too; I was just so proud of him. He did really well,” she said.

Heather Kirby prepares to send a sighter shot downrange in preparation for the Day 2 final of the JROTC championship. Moments later Kirby fired a 105.0, the highest score ever fired in an official 3P Air Rifle Council open class precision final in the U.S.

Connor Davis, the 2011 defending national champion in precision air rifle, fought valiantly to repeat in 2012 but came up five hundredths of a point short to teammate Heather Kirby. Davis fired a 104.2 final on Day 2 in a world-class performance by both competitors.

Howald also reflected on her transition from shooting sporter to precision air rifle this season after years of sporter competition. “At first it was really difficult to transfer everything, but it’s been one of the best things I think anyone could do, to start out in sporter and then transfer,” she said.

In JROTC service competition in precision class, Kirby and Davis led the Marine Corps. Kelsey Moral, 17, of East Coweta High School USMC JROTC, placed third with a score of 1262.9.

Howald was the high Army JROTC competitor with an aggregate score of 1271.5. In second place was Doran, who fired a 1265.3 and Jasmine Juarez, 17, of Del Valle High School Army JROTC placed third with a total score of 1264.9.

In Navy JROTC competition, Jodi Cull-Host led the way, followed by Darren Kasl, 17, of El Dorado High School, Texas, who fired an aggregate of 1268.1. Briana Figueroa, 17, of Manzano High School, New Mexico, placed third with a total score of 1264.8.

Christopher Cottrell, 18, of Prairie High School Air Force JROTC, Washington, led the Air Force cadets with an aggregate score of 1159. DeArmond Lopez, 17, of Sandia High School AFJROTC, placed second in the precision class with 1151. It was only the second year of competition for the Air Force JROTC in the precision category. Lopez set the new Air Force JROTC individual precision air rifle national record in the kneeling position on Day 1 with a 197 and 16 center shots.

In team competition, Ozark High School Army JROTC, Missouri, unseated defending champion Shelby County High School USMC JROTC, Kentucky, with a team aggregate score of 4645. It was the first time Ozark has fielded a precision air rifle team. Team members funded the majority of the cost of their own rifles and dedicated themselves to getting up to speed in the precision class with great success. Ozark team members are Tessa Howald, Makennon Doran, Shelby Brummett and Logan Hunt.

Shelby County HS placed second with a combined score of 4637. Team members are Connor Davis, Heather Kirby, Miquel Batz and Cristina Sanchez. Del Valle HS Army JROTC, Texas, placed third with an aggregate score of 4607. Team members are Jasmine Juarez, Kevin Cruz, Jose Arras and Jaime Regis.

Los Alamos HS Navy JROTC, New Mexico, placed fourth with 4577 team match points. Team members are Jodi Cull-Host, Cory Aslin, Tessa Snyder and John Gibson. Walla Walla HS Army JROTC, Washington, placed fifth with an aggregate score of 4555. Team members are Kyle Jameson, Sarah Jameson, Karri Mickelson and Caitlin Lasseigne.

Makennon Doran, left, and Tessa Howald compete in a one-shot shoot-off for fourth place in the Day 1 precision air rifle final. Howald, trailing by three points after qualification shooting, shot her way back into a tie during the final. She topped her teammate 10.5 to 10.3 in the shoot-off. Howald placed fourth overall in the championship.

An emotional Tessa Howald, comforted by awards presenter Leon McMullen, Deputy Director of the U.S. Army JROTC and Ozark High School teammates, reacts to her team’s victory in their first-ever precision air rifle national championship.

Shelby County High School USMC placed second with a combined score of 4637. Team members are Cristina Sanchez, Connor Davis, Miquel Batz and Heather Kirby.

Del Valle HS Army JROTC, Texas, placed third with an aggregate score of 4607. Team members are Jasmine Juarez, Jaime Regis, Jose Arras and Kevin Cruz.
