EXPLANATION OF ADAPTIVE SHOOTING

Overviews of the Paralympic categories are as follows:

Only SH1 and SH2 classes are represented in the Paralympic Games, based on IPC Shooting Classification Rules and Regulations.

- SH1 – Shooters able to support a firearm without a stand
 - SH1 class includes athletes with lower limb impairments and either no upper limb impairments, or an upper limb impairment that does not prevent the athlete from supporting the weight of the rifle or pistol themselves (i.e. in the non-shooting arm for pistol shooters). Many, but not all, athletes compete in a sitting position either from a wheelchair or chair/stool
- SH2 – Shooters requiring a firearm support to shoot
 - SH2 class includes athletes who also have more severe upper limb impairments, which prevents the athlete from supporting the weight of the rifle themselves. SH2 athletes compete only in rifle events, and use a spring mounted stand to support the weight of the rifle. Some athletes also require a support assistant to load the rifle for them.

Sub-classifications A, B and C define wheelchair backrest height depending on back and pelvic strength per athlete.

The following positions are adapted for Paralympic shooters:

- Standing (standing or seated, shooting table support not allowed)
- Kneeling (Seated, single elbow support on shooting table plus use of a sling)
- Prone (Seated or prone, both elbows supported atop a shooting table plus use of a sling)
